Devises New Piano Method For Polio Child

Mrs. Stella Friedsam, a mother and housewife of Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y., who once was a concert pianist, devised what is believed to be the first one-hand piano method for beginners as the result of the yearning of a twelve-year-old poliomyelitis victim to play the piano.

A full course in the fundamentals of one-hand playing, Mrs. Friedsam's music begins with the simplest exercises and advances through the major scales, including her one-hand arrangements of such music as "Yankee Doodle" and the minuet from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" or a theme from Haydn's "Surprise Symphony." Her music employs both the bass and treble clefs and when heard gives the impression of music played with both hands, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Mrs. Friedsam played professionally under her maiden name, Stella Stamler, but as a result of her new piano method she has gained another musical alias. Her one-hand piano method has been published by Mills Music, Inc., music publishers, of 1619 Broadway, under the name of Stella Show. She explained her publishers wanted something "short and easily remembered."

Her inspiration to write this piano method is Nancy Chertok, who lives with her parents, Stanley and Bernice Chertok, on the fourth floor of the apartment house in which Mrs. Friedsam lives at 141 Woodmere Boulevard. Her mother explained that Nancy had played "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," and such before she was stricken with polio seven years ago and, while still undergoing treatment, began asking when she could resume taking lessons.

[redacted] because she was unable to use her right hand, it seemed apparent it would be more frustrating for her if she did not, so Mrs. Chertok went to Mrs. Friedsam, who was teaching several children in the apartment.

"There wasn't any music available for one hand at Nancy's musical level," Mrs. Friedsam explained. "I did quite a bit of research. There was left-hand music for advanced players, intended to strengthen the left hand, but there [redacted] I didn't want to teach Nancy the bass and treble separately, so I had to devise a way of playing both so that the effect would be that of music played with two hands."

The idea, she continued, was not to "make the handicapped person feel they are doing some-

Must Build Good Homes To Get U.S. Technicians

Housing of a superior type to the standard dwellings being mass-produced for immigrants in Israel will be erected for professional persons and technicians, according to a decision taken by the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine. This is calculated to facilitate settlement in Israel of badly needed skilled persons from the United States and other Western countries who want to come to Israel but are deterred by the housing situation.

The decision to build better homes for these immigrants represents a shift in policy. Hitherto there has been strong opposition to recognizing any class of immigrants as "aristocratic". But the homes built for penniless immigrants from East Europe and the Middle East, one or two-room apartments with unplastered stone-walls, rough cement floors and without bathtubs or inner doors were unacceptable to those accustomed to American standards, says the New York Times.

After Dr. Emanuel Neumann of New York became head of the Jewish Agency's economic department last year, he argued in the executive that Israel's acute shortage of technicians could be attributed to the housing situation. The Jewish Agency vote made necessary appropriations for a public housing corporation and to guarantee mortgage loans for dwellings to be leased or sold to professional or technical immigrants.

Gives $250,000 To Harvard, For Unrestricted Fund

A gift of $250,000 to establish a scholarship fund for undergraduates at Harvard University—the largest single contribution for scholarships since 1936—was announced by Dr. James B. Conant, president. The gift was from Mr. and Mrs. John L. Loeb, of New York.

The Loebs' gift was stipulated to establish a fund for the John Langeloth Loeb Scholarships, the income from which "is to be used for unrestricted scholarships to undergraduate students of Harvard College." The university did not announce how the funds would be used, but Dean Wilbur J. Bender [redacted] stressed the cost of a college education by at least 50 per cent since World War II, and said: "It is essential that we increase our scholarship funds by at least as much if Harvard is to remain a democratic national educational institution open to talent wherever it is found."

Mr. Loeb, who has two sons at Harvard, is a partner in Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades & Co., stock brokers at 42 Wall Street. He is a director of the Empire Trust Co., Rome Cable Co., National Radiator Co. and Dome Exploration (Western), Ltd., and a governor of the New York Stock Exchange. He is also a trustee of Montefiore and Beekman-Downtown Hospitals. He was graduated with honors from Harvard in 1924.

In 1936 Mr. and Mrs. Loeb joined with others in establishing the Arthur Lehman Fund, named for Mrs. Loeb's father, to provide fellowships in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Ask Prayers For Iron Curtain Victims

An appeal for the united spiritual strength of Christians and Jews in the United States to aid in the setting up of brotherhood ties with victims of Communism has been made by officials of Crusade for Freedom, which operates Radio Free Europe.

The appeal called for prayers in churches and synagogues to be continued as part of regular worship services. Announcement of the move was made by Fred Smith, executive director. The chairman is Gen. Lucius D. Clay.

In coordinating the project, information on responses will be broadcast over several wave lengths to six satellite countries—Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Rumania and Poland. The peoples of these countries will be asked to pray for unity in spirit on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

Among the expected results are the encouragement of peoples in Communist - dominated countries and the counteracting of anti-religious propaganda. Another expected result is the awakening realization of the menace of Communism, says the New York Times.

The project was launched by Crusade for Freedom officials following expressed opinions by many religious leaders that the spiritual forces of the United States could help strengthen the spiritual resolves of oppressed peoples and thus lead to a weakening of Communist influence.

Four Get Stephen Wise Awards

Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett of Israel; Professor Zechariah Chafee, Jr. of Harvard University; Dr. Nahum Goldmann, co-chairman of the Jewish Agency; and the noted composer, Ernest Bloch, have been named the recipients of the Stephen Wise Awards for 1951, it was announced by Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress. The awards, each bearing a cash value of $1,000, were established by the American Jewish Congress in 1949 to mark the 75th birthday of the late Dr. Wise and are made annually in four major areas of activity to which he had dedicated his life. These include the growth and development of Israel, civil rights and civil liberties, the welfare of Jews in all lands and Jewish culture and education.

In announcing the recipients, Dr. Goldstein declared: "The American Jewish Congress, when it established the Stephen Wise Awards in 1949, hoped that they would come to occupy as honored a place in American and Jewish life as the name they bear should merit for them. The recipients who were selected in 1949 and 1950 and the recommendations of this year's committee amply justify our confidence that this hope is being fulfilled.

"As Israel's Foreign Minister and the chief architect of its foreign policy, Moshe Sharett has built a position of international respect and understanding for Israel and its aspirations which have enabled the new state to continue its life-saving and life-building work.

"Professor Chafee, for more than a generation, has been the nation's foremost interpreter of the constitutional basis of freedom of speech and civil liberties. He has been one of the country's most courageous defenders of the principles of democracy, free press, and academic freedom. In these grim days, we cannot laud that defense often enough and without deep and abiding gratitude.

"Through the Zionist movement and as a founder and head of the World Jewish Congress, Nahum Goldmann has given a lifetime of unwearying service to the Jewish people. He has eloquently affirmed the concept of the unity of the Jewish people; he has helped to fashion effective instruments to safeguard the rights and welfare of Jews everywhere, and he has given statesman-like guidance and skillful leadership on all the critical problems by which the Jewish people has been confronted in a chaotic and uncertain world.

"While the contribution of Jews to the arts has been generally acknowledged, their uniquely Jewish contributions have been less frequently and adequately recognized. Ernest Bloch has been not only a composer of world renown; he has been a truly Jewish composer, translating the Jewish soul and the Jewish idiom into major works of enduring significance which have enriched contemporary Jewish culture."

Previous recipients of the awards were: Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion of Israel; Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, of the Joint Distribution Committee; Prof. Harry Wolfson, of Harvard University; Prof. Raphael Lemkin, of Yale University; Abba Eban, Israel Ambassador to the United States; the American Association for Jewish Education; and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The recipients are named each year by a committee of distinguished public citizens and announced on March 17, the date of Dr. Wise's birthday. This year's awards committee, headed by Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of Philadelphia, was: Dr. Abram Sachar, president of Brandeis University; James N. Rosenberg, of New York; Ira A. Hirschmann, of New York; Dr. Solomon Grayzel, the historian, of Philadelphia; Dr. Jerome G. Heller, the noted Reform rabbi, of Cincinnati; Prof. Harry A. Wolfson, Harvard University; Rabbi Irving Miller, New York; Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, Rabbi, educator, and Reconstructionist, of New York; Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, New York; Michael M. Nimetson, New York; Benjamin G. Browdy, head of the Zionist Organization of America; Rudolf G. Sonneborn, New York; Walter White, the distinguished Negro leader, of New York; and Dr. Goldstein.

Talks On German Reparation To Jews Are Held At The Hague

Two separate but simultaneous sets of meetings on Jewish claims against the German nation are going on at The Hague, The Netherlands.

The West German Government, representing part of the Germany that Jews of the world hold responsible for many wrongs during the Hitler period, meet with representatives of the Government of Israel on one hand and with delegations representing the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany on the other. The latter body represents twenty-three Jewish organizations in eight countries.

The meetings are being held as a result of the initiative of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who, in a formal statement last September, recognized the Hitler regime's responsibility for many wrongs against the Jews and offered to meet with Israel and representatives of world Jewish communities to discuss "reparation" for them.

While "reparation" is an admitted term on the Jewish side of the conference, "reparations," in the classical sense of settlement of war damages, is not. "Reparations" implies that something done has been undone and both Israelis and the Conference maintain that what was done to Jews in Germany cannot be undone, says the New York Times.

"There will be no negotiations whatever on moral issues," a Conference spokesman said. "That is why our organization stresses the word 'material' in its name."

This distinction between moral and material issues has not satisfied all Jewish groups, some of which feel that, whatever is said formally, the world will regard any payment Germans make to Israel or to Jewish communities, as having somehow wiped part of the slate clean. While Germans are very discreet on this matter, there is no doubt they expect to get some moral credit for a settlement of Jewish material claims.

While the Conference delegation meets with the Germans, it will present the case for settlement of claims of individuals. It will also present the case for turning over to Jewish organizations the property of Jews who died without heirs. On both of these matters, a considerable body of law and agreements already exists, notably Law 59 in the West German Constitution which provides for turning over heirless Jewish property to appropriate successor organizations.

The Israeli Government is presenting a straight bill of $1,000,000,000 for "collective recompense."

The West German delegation to the reparations conference with representatives of Israel and Jewish organizations, will stress their Federal Government's strained cash resources and offer payment in kind over a comparatively lengthy period, possibly twenty years.

However, West German negotiators have been warned by Jewish representatives in preliminary talks that Israel and the Jewish groups would request speedy fulfillment of reparations claims, quite aside from the total amount ultimately agreed upon, according to the New York Times.

Although Jewish leaders will seek cash, it was understood they would consider payments in kind, but only over a short period, perhaps five years. The West German delegation is under the leadership of Prof. Franz Boehm [redacted]

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Mittelman, 425 St. Joseph Boulevard West, gave a luncheon, with one hundred and fifty guests present, in Beth David Synagogue hall, in celebration of the bar-mitzvah of their eldest son, Michael Allan; brother of Sheila, aged ten; and of Joseph, aged four; grandson of Mrs. J. Friedlansky, Edward Charles Street. The head table held centerpieces of variegated spring flowers and the other tables had flowers. Rabbi Isaac Teicher was master of ceremonies. The bar-mitzvah boy spoke, and Mrs. M. Raffer, a great-aunt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is chairman of the Prospect Chapter of Hadassah and of the Jewish National Fund, of Prospect Park, in Brooklyn, N. Y., also spoke. Michel, who is a student at United Talmud Torahs, had his name inscribed in the bar-mitzvah book of the Jewish National Fund, of Israel. His teacher is Rabbi Elimeleeh. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. David Friedland, uncle and aunt, of East Orange, N. J.; Mrs. M. Schneiderman, aunt, of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Charles Weintrub and daughters, Surrell and Sylvia, aunt and cousins, of Bronx, N. Y.; Mrs. M. Raffer, great-aunt, and grandson, Noel Raffer, both of Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Drexler, cousins, of Bronx, N. Y. The following afternoon, there was a party with thirty-seven boys present, friends of Michael. Movies were shown. Chaim Teicher, son of Rabbi Teicher, played the piano, and his mother, Mrs. Teicher, led the boys in a Hebrew sing-song. In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Mittelman were at home to relatives and friends.

To ensure a vacation safe from water mishaps, it is wise to take swimming lessons. To learn how to take care of oneself in lake, river or ocean, it is a good idea to join swimming classes held during the winter in many communities. Children should be taught to swim as soon as they are old enough to control their muscles and to learn the correct action.

ELLBOGEN-SCHNARCH

The marriage of Miriam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Schnarch, 5346 Hutchison Street, to Ely Ellbogen, foster-son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Laxer, 5996 Terrebonne Avenue, took place on January 6, at Chevra Kaddsha Synagogue, at half-past six o'clock, Rabbi J. Lieff and Reverend A. Kenner officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin and lace, fashioned with a Peter Pan neckline, long, tight sleeves, pointed at the wrists, a tight-fitted bodice, and a slightly flared skirt, finishing in a lace train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was draped to a Juliet cap studded with seed pearl and other beads and she carried a white Bible, covered with two mauve orchids and white streamers. Miss Shirley Schnarch, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore a strapless floor-length gown of green voile, with matching stole; also a crown with two yellow roses on each side, and carried yellow roses. Essie and Carol Schnarch, sisters of the bride, were flower girls, the former wearing pink taffeta, and the latter in pink voile. Their crowns were of pink carnations, and they carried nosegays of pink and white carnations. Sam. Mayer, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Ernest Gluck, Jacob Weber, Louis Frank, Zolton Greenblatt, Carl Laxer, Edward Schecter, Joseph Richman, and George Rois. Baskets of mixed flowers decorated the altar. There was organ music. In the synagogue hall, Mrs. Schnarch, mother of the bride, received in a floor-length gown of brown silk and lace, with a white hat of daisies and rhinestones, and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Laxer, foster-mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of blue lace, a pink hat, and a corsage of pink carnations. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in New York, and Chicago, Ill., the former travelling in a gray gabardine suit, with gray accessories, and a gray lamb coat. They are living at 4600 St. Catherine Road. Mr. and Mrs. H. Rappaport, uncle and aunt of the bride, of New York; Mrs. H. Meyerovitch, aunt of the groom, of Long Island, New York; and Mrs. M. Boone, aunt of the groom, of Bridgeport, Conn., were wedding guests.

SMOLKIN-WISE

The marriage of Ruth, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wise, 391 St. Joseph Boulevard West, to Samuel M. Smolkin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smolkin, 5634 Waverley Street, took place at half-past six o'clock, on March 2, at Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue. Dr. Solomon Frank, Rabbi, and Reverend S. Kastner officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Her floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace and satin was fashioned with a high, standing collar which had tiny satin buttons to the waist; long tight sleeves, pointed over the wrists, a tight-fitted bodice, and a very full, bouffant skirt terminating in a train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was draped to a bonnet-shaped satin headdress, and she carried a prayer book, covered with white streamers. Miss Gilda Smolkin, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, wore a strapless floor-length gown of ice-blue net over white net, with matching stole also an ice-blue tulle crown; and carried a semi-cascade of pale pink roses. The bridesmaids were: Mrs. David Bercovitch and Miss Angela Wise, sister of the bride, the former wearing navy-blue net over pink satin, and Miss Wise, in navy-blue net over white taffeta. They had rhinestone-studded veils as headdresses and carried nosegays of various spring flowers. Sam. Roth, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Allen Seller, Sam. M. Auerbach, David Roth, Jack Hoffman, all cousins of the groom Eddie Lasser, David Rubin, David Bercovitch, and Asher Garbuz. George Smolkin, brother of the groom, was junior usher. David R. Pollock, cousin of the bride, in full dress, was ring-bearer. The synagogue and aisle were decorated with mixed spring flowers and white candelabra. "Because" was sung by Eddie Lemco, and the "Wedding March" was played. In the synagogue hall, Mrs. Wise, mother of the bride, received, in a floor-length gown of royal-blue Chantilly lace over orchid-coloured taffeta; with an orchid coloured flowered hat, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Smolkin, mother of the groom, wore a floor-length gown of champagne-coloured lace and net, made with a nylon pleated net skirt; a cap-shaped hat of gold metallic, and a corsage of Tea roses. The bride and groom spent their honeymoon in Quebec City, the former travelling in a greyish-blue suit, with orchid-coloured and navy-blue accessories, and a grey lamb coat. They are residing at 4907 Esplanade Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. M. Weinstein, great-uncle and aunt of the bride, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Jack Tinkler, uncle of the bride, of Toronto, Ont.; Mrs. S. Simons, cousin of the bride, of St. Thomas, Ont.; L. Scott, cousin of the bride, of Noranda, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Max Smolkin, uncle and aunt of the groom, of Cornwall, Ont.; Mrs. H. Rizd, aunt of the groom, of New York; and Mr. and Mrs. J. Finklestein, uncle and aunt of the groom, of Ottawa, Ont., were wedding guests.

While all ages are susceptible to tuberculosis, it is especially dangerous to those between the ages of 18 and 30, mainly for the reason that until 18 parents usually exercise guardianship over the child's health; after 30, the individual has usually reached the period when voluntary care of the health is practiced. Between those age brackets younger people are likely to overdo physical capabilities, neglect their health, and skip such precautions as balanced meals, medical checkups and adequate rest.

SEEKS RARE MANUSCRIPTS IN ISRAEL

At the age of 74, Dr. Alexander Marx, director of libraries, and Jacob H. Schiff Professor of History at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, has just made his first trip to Israel. Dr. Marx, a leading historian of the Jews and bibliographer of Hebrew books and manuscripts, is visiting Israeli libraries to explore possibilities of obtaining books and manuscripts through inter-library exchange and of establishing closer cooperation with the seminary library.

He will also seek manuscripts that may have come to Israel from European countries and will inspect volumes that may be microfilmed to supplement the seminary library's collection. Next year the seminary plans to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Dr. Marx' affiliation with it. Dr. Marx was named librarian by Dr. Solomon Schechter, second president of the seminary, in 1903. The seminary library has a collection of 153,000 books and 9,000 rare manuscripts, and is one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Outdoor sunshine and fresh air are necessary to a child's growth and good health, all the year round. Even in winter, youngsters should be warmly clad and sent out to play. The exercise will help to give them good appetites and make bedtime more welcome.

DEATHS

Mrs. Freda Leah Strasberg Greenberg died at her home, 4711 Grosvenor Avenue, in her seventy-second year, on Wednesday, March 12. She is survived by her husband, Max Greenberg; a daughter, Miss Clara Greenberg; three sisters, Mrs. L. Frankfurt University and Dr. Otto Kuester of the reparations office in Wuertemberg.

The locale of meeting had been suddenly switched from Brussels. The change was decided upon at preliminary talks between the two Jewish delegations, attended by Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett, which ended in London. An Israeli source said The Hague would provide easier access to legal documentation through the library of the Peace Palace and that this city would be a quieter place to work.

The German statement called attention to the limitation on West Germany's financial capacity. Prof. Frank Boehm, head of the German delegation, said however, that he hoped to convince the Jewish delegation that if the German Government "draws attention to Germany's limited financial capacity, this is not due to unwillingness to make amends, but to the facts which it is beyond its power at the present time to remove."

The German statement expressed the hope that efforts to remedy damage done to the Jews will "be appreciated" on the Israeli and Jewish side as proof of Germany's "earnest and sincere desire" to give recompense to the Jews.

Jewish statements recalled the real reasons for these claims and for this meeting. "We are met to discuss important issues in the dark shadow of the real principals no longer here—millions of Jewish victims of Nazi brutality and the Nazi regime that shamed and debased all humanity," Dr. Moses Leavitt, head of the Conference delegation, said.

Speaking for Israel, Dr. Giora Josephthal said that "It must be clearly understood that satisfaction of Israel's claims cannot be regarded as constituting in any way expiation of the fearful holocaust of 6,000,000 Jews murdered in Europe."

TORONTO MARRIAGES

MANN-WIGGINS

The marriage of Anita Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving I. Wiggins, 624 Huron Street, to Marvin Mann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Nodelman, 812 Briarhill Avenue, took place on February 10, at five o'clock, at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, with Rabbi Judah Washer officiating, assisted by Cantor Nathan Adler. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white lace, embroidered with a silver thread, over satin. Strapless, with matching jacket, fashioned with large collar, and long pleated sleeves, it had a skirt made with insets of lace over crinoline and satin, and a long petal-shaped removable train. Her tulle illusion fingertip veil was caught to a matching lace cap, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. Miss Pearley Himel was maid of honour. She wore a tomato-red strapless nylon gown, with accordion-pleated skirt, matching nylon jacket, and a taffeta cap, trimmed with rosebuds and veiling, and carried a nosegay of coral-coloured carnations. The bridesmaids were: Misses Olga Tudos, Harriet Berkowitz, Mrs. S. Fishbein, and Mrs. G. Cainer. They were in Paddy-green nylon gowns, similar to that of the maid of honour, with matching headpieces, and blending nosegays. Miss Anna Griffin was junior bridesmaid, in a light green nylon accordion-pleated gown, with matching headpiece, and nosegay of blending flowers. Julius Wiggins was best man. The ushers were: G. Cainer, S. Fishbein, M. Freindly, and J. Banks. Sheldon Wiggins was junior usher, in full dress. The altar was banked with two vases of coral-coloured and white chrysanthemums, and the canopy was covered with greens and coral-coloured flowers. The bride's mother wore a pearl-grey nylon gown over pale blue taffeta, with matching beaded hat, and mauve orchid corsage. The groom's mother was in a dark grey lace gown, with matching feathered hat, and mauve orchid corsage. For the trip to New York, the bride left in a black and white checked suit, with white hat and gloves, black accessories, and black Persian lamb three-quarter-length coat. The couple are residing in Barrie. Mrs. E. Nodelman, of Los Angeles, Cal.; Julius Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. L. Berkowitz and daughter, Harriett; Mr. and Mrs. J. Scheiler, of New York; and Mrs. A. Tennenbaum, of Miami Beach, Florida, were wedding guests.

BASSET-SUSSMAN

The marriage of Helen Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sussman, 200 Northcliffe Boulevard, to Gordon Basset, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Basset, of Sault Ste. Marie, took place on Sunday, February 24, at five o'clock, at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, with Rabbi Judah Washer officiating, assisted by Cantor Nathan Adler. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a white Chantilly lace ankle-length gown. It was made with a nylon yoke, long sleeves, and skirt, accordion-pleated in front and having a full back. Her fingertip tulle illusion veil, embroidered at the back with a pearl-beaded cluster, was attached to her lace Juliet cap. She carried a white Bible adorned with a white orchid, hyacinth petals, and Pinocchio roses. Mrs. Marshall Alexander, the groom's cousin, was matron of honour. She wore a dusty-rose-coloured silk shantung afternoon dress, fashioned with slightly off-the-shoulder neckline, three-quarter length sleeves, and full skirt, over a crinoline underskirt; with matching pumps, and had a dusty-pink face-veil. Her bouquet was composed of Pinocchio roses, pink carnations, and hyacinth petals. Miss Annette Rosen, the bride's cousin, was maid of honour, in a gold-coloured silk shantung dress, styled the same as that of the matron of honour; with matching pumps, and a gold-coloured face-veil. She carried a bouquet of blue irises, and hyacinth petals. Frances Blackstein was flower girl, in a pink, ruffled net, ankle-length gown, with matching bonnet. She carried a nosegay of pink and blue-tinted flowers. Dr. A. A. Bassett, the groom's brother, was best man. Ushers were Jack Sussman, Bernard Basset, Norman Haine, Bill Zener, Gordon Freedman, Marshall Alexander, Irving Winston, M. Walderman, Philip Rudson, and Sol. Davis. Frank Zads, in full dress suit, was ring-bearer. The candlelight ceremony took place against a background of white lilies and irises. The bride's mother wore a royal-blue gown of chiffon over taffeta, trimmed with bugle beads and rhinestones, and having a low-cut neckline, three-quarter length sleeves, and skirt, accordion-pleated at the hem, forming a fishtail back; with matching gloves and shoes, and hat trimmed in rhinestones, and bugle beads, with corsage of Pinocchio roses. The groom's mother wore a grey crepe gown having a sweetheart neckline, three-quarter-length sleeves, and straight skirt, with white gloves; mauve, white, and grey flowered hat; and she had a mauve orchid corsage. For the motor trip to California, and Florida, the bride left in a grey flannel suit, white straw hat, and navy-blue accessories, with white orchid corsage. They will reside in Sault Ste. Marie. Out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Glazer and daughter, Beverley, and Mr. and Mrs. I. Eisenberg and daughter, Rosalind, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Goldsher and children, Myrna and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allan, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Blumstein, and Mrs. Alec. Gurian, of New York; Mrs. Marcus Shneider and daughter, Miriam, Mrs. A. Stern, Albert Rotenberg and nephew, Saul, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dubin and M. Widerbaum, of Detroit, Mich.; Irwin Snyder, of Greenville, Tennessee; Arnold Kates, Herbert Cohn, Irving Cohn, Jack Cohn, Merley Torgov, Harry Daiter, Jerry Daiter, Mrs. J. Daiter, Jack Fishman, Sol. Davis, Bernard Basset, and Jay Davis, of Sault Ste. Marie.

ZIMMERMAN-ROSENSWEIG

The marriage of Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rosensweig, 103 Raglan Avenue, to Melvin Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Zimmerman, of Manchester, England, took place on January 20, at half-past twelve o'clock, at Murray House, with Rabbi Bernard Rosensweig officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a dusty-pink silk shantung afternoon dress, fashioned with V-neckline having an inset ascot, three-quarter-length sleeves, and full skirt designed with accordion pleated insert. Her matching off-the-face hat had pink veiling, and she carried a white orchid cascade. Mr. and Mrs. H. Osoiky, Shannon Street, the bride's brother-in-law and sister, gave the groom in marriage. The bride's mother wore a black lace dress, made with low neckline, long sleeves, and straight skirt, with corsage of red roses. For the trip to the United States, the bride left in a green worsted wool suit, with gold-coloured blouse and hat; brown accessories, brown Alaska seal coat, and corsage of Tea roses. They are residing at 245 Rowland Avenue.

ENGAGEMENTS

The engagement of Miss Sylvia Abrams, daughter of Mrs. A. Abrams, of London, to Henry Kay, nephew of Mr. and Mrs. A. Elsen, 667 Atlas Avenue, is announced.

The engagement of Miss Sylvia Ruth Soren, daughter of Mrs. Eva Soren, 141 Montrose Avenue, to Sydney Epstein, son of Mrs. Sadie Epstein, 79 McCaul Street, and the late Samuel Epstein, is announced, to take place on September 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Manning Findley, 605 Markham Street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nora, to Murray Bernbaum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Bernbaum, 523 Vesta Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drevvig, 152 Chiltern Hill Road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Adele, to Sidney Hernick, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hernick, 356 Ossington Avenue, the marriage to take place on June 4, at Shaarei Shomayim Synagogue, with Rabbi Judah Washer officiating.

FIGURES SHOW HOW INFLUX WAS CONSTITUTED

The Jewish Agency for Palestine announced that 203,489 immigrants entered Israel in the fiscal year ending September 30, 1951. The figure for the calendar year 1951 was 174,706, of whom 113,842 came from Moslem countries and some twenty per cent from countries behind the Iron Curtain.

Of the 174,706 who entered Israel in the calendar year 1951, there were 6813 infants under one year, and two women and five men ranging in age from 105 to 109. The largest single group, 84,340, came from Iraq; the second largest group, 41,101, came from Rumania. Other sizable immigrant blocs included 13,378 from North Africa and Libya, and 11,124 from Iran. The Jewish Agency, charged with the task of transporting and rehabilitation the newcomers, receives its funds from the United Jewish Appeal.

A breakdown according to occupations and ages shows that 117,414 of those who entered were under forty years of age. However, 56,122 in the above category were under fifteen years of age and as yet unemployable. Of the entire total only 58,132 were in the 20 to 44 age group. The 50 to 65 age group comprised 26,287.

There were 2,441 clerks among those who entered in 1951. Tailors numbering 1,225 constituted the second largest group. There were also 769 carpenters; 704 seamstresses; 684 chauffeurs; 458 teachers; and 362 mechanics among the newcomers. There were only 181 doctors among them.

TO NAME CENTER FOR MRS. ROOSEVELT

On her recent four-day trip through Israel, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt visited several health and welfare facilities operated by Hadassah. At the New England Ben Shemen Village in Kfar Vitkin, Mrs. Roosevelt was informed that Hadassah would shortly build a vocational training center in her name, for Youth Aliyah youngsters to be trained in the various phases of industrial agriculture. In Jerusalem she saw Hadassah's Mekor Haim Tuberculosis Hospital which set up the first TB wing for children in Israel. Mekor Haim has 45 beds alloted for tubercular children and is one of five hospitals operated in Jerusalem by Hadassah.

Mrs. Roosevelt visited the Eddie Cantor-Youth Aliyah Village just outside of Jerusalem, where many youngsters who were rescued from the ghettos of the world are today being rehabilitated and prepared for a productive life in their new homeland and saw the Hannut Hadassah Szold Reception Center for Youth Aliyah children where there is a music room named in her honor. Her Hadassah itinerary also took her to Beersheba in the Negev where she lunched with the Mayor and several Hadassah officials at the Hadassah-Yassky Memorial Hospital. The hospital is used by many Arabs who come from nearby towns and villages.

During the growing years, from birth to 16 years, every child requires 400 international units of daily vitamin D. This vitamin helps to develop strong healthy bones and teeth and aids in averting rickets.

TWO-FAITH DINNER CUSTOM IS 200 YEARS OLD

The congregations of Old Christ Episcopal Church and Mikveh Israel Synagogue sat down together at a dinner carrying out a tradition, that began about 200 years ago. The dinner, an annual affair, alternates between the two congregations. This year it was held in the Neighborhood House of Christ Church.

In 1740 Christ Church congregation went on record that both Jews and Catholics should be permitted to build houses of worship. As a result, permits were issued for the erection of Mikveh Israel Synagogue and St. Joseph's Catholic Church. The association between Mikveh Israel and Christ Church began at that time.

The principal speaker at dinner was Will Herberg of New York, education director of Local 22, Waist and Dressmakers Division of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

One serving of citrus fruit a day is essential to health. The fruit may be taken whole or as juice, either fresh or canned. Nutritionists include tomato juice in this group.

Care Of Blind In Boarding Homes Meets Test

New worlds are opening for blind men and women who once could look forward only to spending their lives in institutions instead of among members of a family that becomes almost as their own. After two years of operating a pilot project under which boarding homes were found for some blind clients, the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind reported that its program for giving such persons a new chance at living as normally as possible had been successful.

Mrs. Louise Jacobson, a caseworker for the guild, which is a non-sectarian voluntary agency, described to 100 representatives of social work agencies how the plan was conceived and carried out. She spoke at the first annual meeting of the guild's social service department.

While many blind persons benefit from institutionalized living, many others find living in a large group not completely satisfactory. At first it was necessary to advertise in papers for potential boarding homes. More recently the guild has found that often such places are referred to them.

It is not uncommon to find a blind man helping the mother of the family with which he is living. He may help bake a cake or pie or run errands just like any other member of the family. Before a boarding home "mother" is accepted both she and the blind client of the agency are satisfied that the handicapped person will fit in with the others in the family. Board ranges from $130 to $240 a month.

Many of the "mothers" must provide extra services, such as giving insulin shots to blind diabetics. Others provide kosher food. Each client has his own room and shares the living room and dining space with members of the family.

There may be help for the blind person with his laundry and mail. Physical aspects of the home such as elevators, stairs, furniture arrangements and impediments are studied and a telephone is provided for the blind "new" member of the household.

Mrs. Jacobson said:

"The meaning a boarding home has for the client when a good placement has been effected is equivalent to opening a new world for him. So accustomed has the client become to what at best would be a meager role in society that the fact of a place to live in, which is home in many of its best aspects—a life of sharing, being together, yet retaining one's independence—can be somewhat overwhelming."

To provide guidance for this the guild caseworkers keep tabs on how the unusual arrangement works out. Only a negligible number of clients change homes, she said. There are now twenty-five of the guild's clients who live in such boarding homes.

A three-year plan to the memory of the six million victims of Nazism has been launched by the Mizrachi (religious-Zionist) Organization of America, so that each of the more than 3,000 synagogues and Jewish centers in the United States will acquire a specially-designed memorial marker carved from marble quarried in Israel, from a newly-discovered quarry at historic Mount Gilboa, where, according to Biblical tradition, King Saul and his son, Jonathan, fell in battle. A model, designed by A. Raymond Katz, of New York, noted architectural designer, calls for a six-foot high symbolic representation of the Hebrew letter, "zayin," the first letter of the Hebrew word, "Zachor," which means "remember!", on a square base.

The salad is no longer regarded solely as a summer dish. Now that fresh vegetables are obtainable all the year around, the salad should be a daily addition to the menu.

MEIMA-BUCHA

BY RUTH FAINLIGHT

I remember in New York an old woman called Meima-Bucha. I can't remember what her exact relationship to me was, perhaps a great aunt. Although she had many children, they had all deserted her, and she lived, with another old lady who looked after her, for she was paralysed, in two rooms in a tenement building in the East Side.

Whenever my mother or aunt went to New York, they would visit Meima-Bucha, and spend some time talking to her, for she was very lonely. During the summer that I was eleven, I remember going with my mother to see her.

We travelled to the East Side by the elevated railway in an almost empty carriage. It was a hot, dry day in early August and the sun, coming through the dust smeared glass of the windows, lit up the straw covered seats to a bright ripe banana yellow. I sat, almost hypnotised by the small hexagonal pattern of the woven straw, until it was time to get off.

My mother and I walked down the iron steps from the dirty, spittle-spotted station that smelt of stale electricity, into the street below, full of delicatessens, dry cleaners, food and drug stores, and a great variety of others. We turned down one of the streets off the main road, and walked down its length. I remember that the top had been taken off a fire hydrant so that the children could play in the spray of water. The police would often do this during the summer, and each street would have a central cluster of small children, white and black, screaming and running naked into the shower. At the end of the long street we came to another main road, a boulevard, empty and unclean. Opposite us, over the road, was a large empty lot, the earth dried into fine brown grey dust, the verticals in the picture supplied by a few garbage cans and a large boarding advertising some brand of gasoline.

We crossed the boulevard, and walked past the lot. Behind it, the rows of tall, dull brown buildings began again, and, very hot by now, we trudged past about four or five doorways before we entered one, a high open door, on one side of which was a row of bells, and beside each bell an empty name plate container.

In contrast to the glare of the asphalt pavement, bouncing back the light until one developed a permanent protective summer squint, the small hallway, smelling of grey, soapy mops, seemed a dark cavern. But my mother knew the way, and immediately began ascending the dark bare staircase. There were eight floors to these buildings, and Meima-Bucha lived on the fifth. We climbed more and more slowly up the staircase smelling of the varied food of the countless families who had lived in the rooms we were passing, until we reached the fifth landing, and on our right was Meima-Bucha's door.

My mother knocked at the door, and in a few moments it was partially opened, and the small face of the woman who lived with Meima-Bucha looked out. She knew my mother, so she opened the door more fully, and gestured us in. She was a thin woman of about fifty-five, with a tight, olive coloured face, and dressed in an ankle-length dark cotton dress covered by a dark printed apron.

"How is she?" my mother asked.

"Not too good," the woman answered. "Come on, I'll take you in to her."

She led my mother through a small windowless room into the next, where Meima-Bucha lay all day, looking out of her window, across the central air shaft around which the houses were built, to the wall of windows opposite.

I remained in the small room, lingering behind my mother, and curious to see what it contained. On the wall opposite the door through which we had entered was a large old-fashioned black iron stove, with a flue-pipe leading up into the murkiness of the ceiling. On my right, behind the door, was a small bed covered by a grey woollen blanket. On the left was a dark stained wooden chest of drawers. The floor of grey wooden planks was bare. And that was all. The room seemed uninteresting, so I walked through to the next.

Meima-Bucha lay, on a high iron bedstead, a large shapeless mass, dirty white. She was wearing a soiled flannel night dress, open at the throat, and I could see the loose wrinkled skin of her neck, and her dull flushed white chest. Her grey white hair stuck out all about her head, and as she spoke softly in Yiddish to my mother she was crying.

As I entered the room, passing the little woman standing like a sentinel inside the door, her head

CLASS IN COOKERY

PASSOVER GEFULTE FISH

three pounds whitefish, pike and dore two medium-sized onions one heaping teaspoon white pepper
two tablespoons sugar
salt to taste
about two tablespoons matzoh meal
one glass of cold water
one tablespoon cooking oil
three eggs

Bone and skin the fish, and chop it fine. Add the onions, which have been chopped; pepper, sugar, salt, and matzoh meal and mix, chopping continuously. Continue and add the water slowly; then the beaten eggs, and the oil. Shape into balls. In a large cooking pot, place the fish-skin and bones; add one or two cut-up onions; and add water to fill about half the pot. Add one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, and a dash of pepper; and then put fish balls in the pot. Add a sliced carrot while fish is cooking; and continue cooking for at least two hours, until fish is done.

Mrs. A. Karel,
4574 Clark Street, Montreal.

PASSOVER MOCK CHOPPED LIVER

one-half pound fresh peas
one-half pound fresh string beans three hard-boiled eggs
salt and pepper to taste
chicken fat or butter

Shell peas and boil with beans in small amount of water until not quite tender. Chop finely with hard-boiled eggs, adding salt and pepper, chicken fat or butter, and mix well. Serve in salad with tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, and any other vegetables.

The honouree wore a pale gold-coloured antique taffeta dress, trimmed with rhinestones at the neckline, and made with short sleeves, and full skirt over a taffeta and nylon crinoline underskirt. Her corsage was of dark red roses. The assistants were: Misses Yvonne and Joyce Nesker, Sondra and Evelyn Gottlieb, Molly and Rose Rotman, Ethel Rayman, Marilyn Spitzberg, Mrs. S. Freeman, and Mrs. A. Weinberg. Vari-coloured roses, irises, carnations, snapdragons, and white lighted tapers, formed the table decoration. The marriage will take place on June 11, at Adath Israel Synagogue.

The town of Kfar Buai Zion, numbering six thousand inhabitants, planted four hundred trees named for Judy Holiday, American actress and movie star, in the public park adjoining the school building. Judy Holiday, who appeared on the Broadway stage, gained prominence in her role in the movie "Born Yesterday".

An accident victim often suffers more from shock than from the actual injury. If the patient has cold perspiration on forehead, cold clammy skin, shallow breathing, rapid pulse and is dazed, treat him for shock. Stop any bleeding, let him lie down and keep him warm. If there is no internal injury, he may have hot beverage such as coffee or tea.

At three years of age, when a child usually has all his first teeth, he should pay his first visit to the dentist. This will probably be a painless matter of examination and cleaning. Don't let the friend who likes to talk about dental sufferings do so in the presence of the child who is about to make his first visit to his dentist.

All news and advertising received this week due to lack of space, will be run in next week's issue.

IN MEMORIAM

CARDISH: In loving memory of our mother, Freda Cardish, who passed away the second day of Nisan 5711 (April 8, 1951).

You are always in our minds dear,
No matter what we do.
All the time within our hearts
There are thoughts of you.
Never a moment, Mother, are you very far away.
Absent but so dear to us,
We miss you more each day.

Infinitely missed, and ever remembered by her loving daughters, Mrs. J. Litchen (Rose), and Mrs. I. Greenspoon (Gert); and grandchildren, Michael Litchen and Pamela Greenspoon.

In loving memory of Joseph H. Stern who passed away March 6th, 1942 (nineteen days in Adar). Deeply missed and sadly mourned.

In loving memory of Solomon Shendroff, who passed away on April 3, 1946 (two days in Nisan).

His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.

Ever remembered by his loving wife, Mrs. Rae Shendroff; loving daughters, Mrs. B. Walker (Vera), and Mrs. L. Stone (Rose); and grandchildren, Bernice and Albert Walker; and Mark and Janice Stone.

lifted, for she was not completely paralysed, and her milky grey old eyes saw me, and she continued, and increased, her crying. I walked over towards the bed, very embarrassed by her tears, and feeling a slight repugnance towards her, lying there, a great helpless shape, on the bed. When I reached the bed, and stood next to my mother, who was sitting on a chair next to Meima-Bucha, I made no movement to kiss her, but just awkwardly said "Hello, how are you?"

But Meima-Bucha could not understand English; all her life she had spoken only Yiddish; and tears continued to flow down her heavy dull fleshed white face. "Kiss her," my mother said to me quietly. I bent over, and kissed her cheek. She began a quick murmur of Yiddish to me, and turned her head to kiss me. Her kiss was long, and very wet on my face, her mouth hung on my cheek, and she continued her meaningless weeping. She was over seventy, and never visited by her children, but she had almost forgotten them, and did not weep now for the reason, not even self pity, but only because of old age.

My mother touched her shoulder, and she moved her mouth from my cheek, took my hand, blessed me, and then turned again to my mother, and continued their soft quick conversation.

Meima-Bucha held my hand for a while, and I stood, unable to move without disturbing her, watching her speak. But her hand unconsciously relaxed, and after a while she moved it, to take my mother's, and I was free. I walked over to the window and looked out, down the five stories, and through ample lines of washing to the yard below. A few children were playing there, I watched them, but they were not interesting, and I turned again to the room.

The room, smelling of bedclothes and sickness, oppressed me, and I longed to leave. The woman, still standing by the door, looked fiercely over to me, sensing my boredom. I looked down at my striped cotton skirt, and pleated it between my fingers, then walked over to my mother, and stood by her chair, and listened to the unintelligible conversation.

At last my mother rose to go. She kissed Meima-Bucha, almost weeping herself, and indicated to me that I should kiss her again. The old woman realised that we were leaving, and wept bitterly, now having an object in her tears. Her wet mouth, and her tears on my face made me mad to leave the room. At last we began to depart, and after another kiss my mother walked into the next room, followed by myself and the woman.

"Here, do take this to buy her a new nightdress," my mother said, pushing some dollar bills into the woman's hands. She stood impassively, and accepted the money without comment.

"You know, she's not clean, you really ought to look after her better," my mother said to her.

The woman assured my mother that she did her best. There was nothing that could be done, so we left, and hurried down the stairs, and out into the street.

The streets that had seemed so unpleasant before, were now fresh, light and sweet smelling to me. My mother walked thoughtfully by my side and said, "You see how awful it is when you are old, and your children leave you. Poor old Meima-Bucha. It's shameful."

But I could only feel my horror at the old woman.

Some years later Meima-Bucha died. When I read, in a letter from my aunt, of her death, I remembered my feeling of disgust for the old lady, with shame. My aunt told me that Meima-Bucha's children had given her a magnificent funeral.

This story is from the Jewish Monthly.

"One God Of The World"

"Who Knows One?
I Know One: One Is The God Of The World" (Passover Haggadah)

The first affirmation in Judaism is the unity of God. Ethical monotheism is the unique contribution of Israel to religion. Often it is erroneously stated that the Jew discovered God. Peoples, long before the Jew came on the stage of history, believed in gods. Primarily, peoples worshipped the manifestations of nature. They worshipped sun, moon, and stars. The Egyptians believed in the crocodile; people in India, in the sacred cow. What the Jew discovered was that God, the Eternal, is the creator of all the glorious manifestations in nature.

God is without beginning and without end, the holy, the compassionate God. That was a revolutionary doctrine which the Jew gave to the world. This doctrine of God's unity constitutes the cornerstone of Judaism and of all great religions. This doctrine is expressed in six words: "Shema Yisroel Adonoy Elohenu Adonoy Echod: Hear, O, Israel: The Lord our God, The Lord is One."

Beginning with the Second Temple the rabbis invested the Shema with the importance of a confession of faith. Twice daily in prayer the Shema had to be recited. When the Torah is taken out on Sabbaths and holy days, the entire congregation pronounces the Shema. Certainly, at the conclusion of the Day of Atonement the Shema is again pronounced. This prayer is the first one to be taught to Jewish childhood and it is the last utterance of the dying. The Shema has been the battle cry of Israel and this precious prayer welded the Jewish people into one great brotherhood.

In the defence of God's unity the sages of Israel had to war against polytheism, paganism, and idolatry. The great Prophets of Israel had to warn their people time and again against the temptation of worshipping the strange gods of the people surrounding them. One need only to turn the pages of history to appreciate the struggle of the Jew in the defence of God's unity. When the Roman Empire flourished, the Jew had to fight against the deification of the Emperor. Jews alone were the only people that dared to reject the erection of statues paying divine honour to Caligula. Indeed, thus did the Jew, in the words of a great historian, "save the honour of the human race."

The Jew had to defend God's unity also against the novel doctrine which was developed by the Jewish Christians identifying a man born of a woman with God. Originally, the Trinity consisted of Father, Mother, and Son and later this concept was formulated as Father, Son and Holy Ghost. Perhaps this trinitarian doctrine is to be traced to the fire-worshippers who observed three shades of light in a flame of fire and therefore believed that God consisted of three in one.

We who believe in the unity of God have our faith strengthened by the fact that the researches of science support the doctrine of a single creative process at work in the universe. The more scientists penetrate into the mysteries of the universe the more they behold a Divine Mind guiding the destinies of the world. Education and scientific research have proven in our day that the Jew is rather the Christ-Begetter and not the Christ-Killer. We Jews blessed the world with Jesus who has become the inspiration for millions who call themselves Christians. Would that Christians might be Christ-like and follow the teachings of the humble Rabbi of Galilee who taught men to love one another!

One thing is sure: Jesus, the Jew, knew about trinity, virgin birth, or the doctrine of original sin. He lived as a Jew and worshipped the One God of Israel, the Creator and the Eternal Holy God. Jesus was crucified by the Romans as a rebel against Rome, along with a number of young Jews who dared to revolt against Roman oppression. We note that in liberal Christianity there is a growing tendency to give emphasis to Jesus, the man, and little, if any, identification is made of him with a God concept. We Jews who believe in the unity of God, believe also in its corollary, the unity of mankind. Even as we have One Father, so we are all members of the one human family.

Jew and Christian in the Passover-Easter season must unite yearly in the preservation of the Judaeo-Christian doctrine of God's unity and human brotherhood. There are many forces at work trying to negate this doctrine. There is no hope for humanity unless people return to the worship of the one God and rediscover their spiritual being. Man has descended to being a manipulating animal and is absorbed in attaining power and physical things. Man must find God again and bring back into life that hope, love, and compassion which result from the worship of a loving God who is the Father of all mankind.

A brilliant linguist, he is fluent in English, German, French, Hebrew, Yiddish, Russian, Arabic and Turkish.

Nahum Goldmann is a native of Poland, now an American citizen. He studied at the Universities of Heidelberg, Marburg, and Berlin; and was founder of the Eshkol Company which published the Encyclopedia Judaica. In 1935, he was elected a member of the World Zionist Executive and became the representative of the Jewish Agency at the League of Nations in Geneva. One of the founders of the World Jewish Congress, he became chairman of its executive committee when it was established in 1936 and, since the death of Stephen Wise in 1949, has been its acting president. He is co-chairman of the Jewish Agency.

Zechariah Chafee, Jr., is Langdell Professor of Law at Harvard University Law School, whose faculty he joined as assistant professor in 1916. He is the author of more than twenty books, the best known of which include his classic works on Freedom of Speech (1920) and Free Speech In The United States (1941). He has been a member of many important commissions, among them the National Committee on Law Observance and Enforcement and the Commission on Freedom of the Press. Out of his membership of the latter body came his two-volume work on Government And Communications (1948).

Ernest Bloch, a native of Switzerland, came to the United States in 1916 and was naturalized in 1924. Recognized as one of the foremost composers, he founded the Cleveland Institute of Music, which he directed from 1920-25, and was director of the San Francisco Conservatory from 1925-30. In 1942 he was awarded the Gold Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters. He has composed many symphonies and other musical works. His Jewish compositions include Two Psalms, Trois Poemes Juifs, Schelomo, the Israel Symphony, the Baal-Shem Suite, and Sacred Service (Avodath Hakodesh), probably his best known Jewish work.

thing different but that they are doing what it ordinarily takes two hands to do."

During these explanations by Mrs. Friedsam and her mother, Nancy remained quiet. But at one point she demonstrated what she could do, playing Rubenstein's "Melody in F" in Mrs. Friedsam's one-hand arrangement. It did sound as though she were using both hands, although she kept her right in her lap. She struck a few wrong notes, but her mother explained that she was tired and overexcited. A few tears appeared in Nancy's eyes.

Mrs. Friedsam was mainly impressed with the value of her one-hand music for the handicapped of whom she pointed out "countless thousands have been denied the privilege of expressing themselves musically." Yet to them, she said, music in general "offers an emotional outlet of great psychological value."

She got out a letter in which Ray Green, who was in 1950 acting chairman of the Committee on Hospital Music for the National Music Council, said her book was "an admirably practical solution to the problems confronting the one-handed pianist, and the the entire project is based on sound rehabilitation and pedagogical principles," says the Herald Tribune.

As Miss Stamler, Mrs. Friedsam made her pianistic debut when eighteen at Town Hall and from 1932 to 1936 was a member of the Gallico Three-Piano Ensemble, giving concerts in the metropolitan area and on the radio. The other members were Paul Gallico, her teacher, and Mae Krieg. Miss Stamler was married in 1933 to Walter Friedsam, who is division head of the stock transfer department of the Manufacturer Trust Company.

She has two sons, Lance, twelve, and Ronald, nine. Both have studied piano under their mother, but she said she did not have "the time or the energy to cope with them. She explained that Lance had told her "he's going to be a professional baseball player." Sighing, she said, "I am not opposed. If he can be a good one I see no reason why he shouldn't be a baseball player."

Newly-discovered documents reveal that the Jewish community of Yugoslavia dates back at least two thousand years, according to the Federation of Jewish Communities there. Ancient documents hitherto unknown have been found by officials at work on a new history showing that there were Jews in what is now called Yugoslavia long before the fall of the Roman Empire. Of Jews registered, 1,277 live in the capital of Belgrade; 1,305, in Zagreb; and 1,010 in Sarajevo; 7,664 having emigrated to Israel.

Israel's armed forces are using radio as a media for the mass education of new immigrants as well as for training soldiers. For the past year, the Armed Forces Broadcasting Service, has been giving daily lessons in basic Hebrew, Israel geography, current events, the Bible, Israel's ancient history. The correspondent "interviews" Biblical personalities and events of the Bible are discussed as if they were current happenings. A record library and three orchestras provide dance music and classics.
